

I find it highly objectionable that the FCC feels that it must pander to corporate entities, which have no feelings, no emotions, no wishes and no souls, to ride over the desires of people merely to be left in peace. Do the individuals inside the FCC feel the same way, or is this simply an example of corporates shacking up with corporates?